

Frequently Asked Questions on Cryptocurrency Appraisals

1. Does the transfer/gift have to take place before an appraisal can be completed? Yes. While the tax code says that a qualified appraisal can be completed as early as 60 days prior to a property gift, our cryptocurrency approach uses the high/low prices for the date of the gift to create an average daily price from the top three exchanges by volume.
2. What documents do I need to provide? A completed Donor Information Form.
3. How much do the appraisals cost?
  - For donations of less than $500K, the fee is $150 for the first appraisal. For each additional appraisal submitted at the same time, benefiting the same charity, and within the same tax year, the fee is $75.
  - For donations greater than $500K the fee is $800 for the first appraisal. For each additional appraisal submitted at the same time, benefiting the same charity, and within the same tax year, the fee is $400.
  - A customized fee will apply if the token is very esoteric (outside the largest 50 by market value on Coinmarketcap) or the donation represents more than 2% of the daily volume which may require a blockage valuation discount.
4. Do I have to pay before the appraisal is released? Yes. Having done this for 10 years, I quickly discovered that I was spending more time trying to collect on invoices than actually doing the appraisals. Past donors were all well- intentioned, but various circumstances arise that require multiple follow up efforts – hence, the new policy. We accept checks or PayPal.
5. When you complete the appraisal, what does it include and where is it mailed? The completed appraisal will include the original, signed appraisal, a receipt for payment, a Form 8283 with a completed Appraisers Section and a bio to conform to the qualified appraisal rules. The donor will mail the “kit” to the Donee Charity so they can complete their section of the Form 8283, (make any copies needed for audit purposes) and then they are to mail the completed original “kit” back to the donor. I provide detailed step-by-step instructions for both the Donor and Charity.
6. Are you a Qualified Appraiser? There is not a definitive answer to this question as the IRS requires a qualified appraiser to complete the appraisal, however, no one is able to meet the strict definitions for virtual currency. The IRS requirement states:
A qualified appraiser is an individual with verifiable education and experience in valuing the type of property for which the appraisal is performed.
The individual:
  - a. Has earned an appraisal designation from a generally recognized professional appraiser organization, or
  - b. Has met certain minimum education requirements and two or more years of experience. To meet the minimum education requirement you must have successfully completed professional or college-level coursework obtained from:

- i. A professional or college-level educational organization,*
- ii. A professional trade or appraiser organization that regularly offers educational programs in valuing the type of property, or*
- iii. An employer as part of an employee apprenticeship or education program similar to professional or college-level courses.*
- c. The individual regularly prepares appraisals for which he or she is paid.*
- d. The individual is not an excluded individual.*

There is neither a degree nor appraisal designation which specifically applies to cryptocurrency. I have earned two master's degrees (Financial Services as well as Risk Management and Insurance) and a Ph.D. in Retirement and Financial Planning (charitable giving dissertation). In addition to more than 500 cryptocurrency appraisals, I have appraised thousands of life insurance donations over the last decade which are also intangible personal property gifts.
